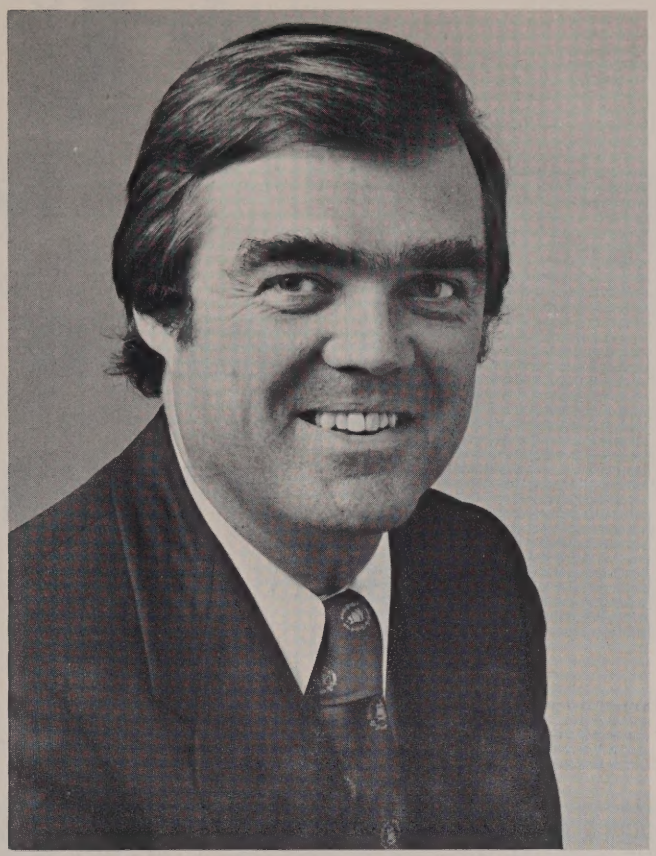
CLASS I



ROBERT P. FITZGERALD
President, Boston Latin School Association

DEDICATION

The Boston Latin School Association is happy to join with the legion of stalwart supporters of the school in wishing the Boston Latin Football squad victory in its annual contest with its ancient rival, Boston English High School. This rivalry is one of the oldest in the country and, over the years, has produced memorable battles between the two schools. The clean hard tackling and blocking, so characteristic of their contests, and the outstanding excellence of their teams, have become nostalgic memories for the alumni of both schools.

Speaking particularly to the Boston Latin School supporters, we are always proud of our football teams, and we support them loyally with a fervor which is characteristic of the spirit of the student body. We hail and salute our gallant players and wish them success on Thanksgiving Day.

Meanwhile in Akron.

I come to you with heavy heart this morning. My faith in sporting America is now as unraveled as a dime store baseball. In retrospect, I should have been more prepared. But I kept staring at my world through rose-colored binoculars. "Anyone can make a mistake," I rationalized.

And so I passed over the fact that Yogi Berra wasn't really a wit. I closed my eyes when it became apparent that Joe Namath did indeed chase, as he calls them, broads. "He really wants to be pure, but fate won't let him," I reasoned. But I can ignore the truth no longer. I will continue to write about sports, but the tinsel is off the tree.

The Soap Box Derby was rigged!

But even worse than the fact are the questions it leaves unanswered. Did the 14 year old dream up the device himself? Or did he have adult help? Was it used at Indianapolis? Were there kickbacks? These are the questions that need answers.

Ah, Ralph Nader, where are you when we need you?
